INDIGO (INtellectual property in DIGital form available online in an Open environment) is the institutional repository for the University of Illinois at Chicago. INDIGO is an online collection of the research and scholarship of faculty, students, and staff at the University of Illinois at Chicago. INDIGO includes research papers, published papers, preprints, conference papers, presentations, and posters, video and sound recording, and other digital material. Persistent, permanent URLs are provided for the content submitted to Indigo.

The University Library has a commitment to preserving the digital content submitted to INDIGO.

Benefits of Submitting Content to Indigo

Increased Dissemination: Because access to Indigo is open to the public, your work is available worldwide.

Increased Impact: Making your work available in more places to more people will extend the potential impact of your research and increase the citation impact of your work. Studies show research deposited in a repository like Indigo is cited more often.

Increased Indexing: Search engines like Google and Google Scholar will find your work, increasing the likelihood others will find it.

Organizes Your Work: Showcase your research in one location.

Permanent URLs: A permanent URL is created for each item submitted into Indigo.

Exhibit Your Work: Assemble and promote your research.

Meet Grant Requirements: Provides a location to share data to aid in meeting grant requirements including NIH data-sharing requirements.
