

Jewish Women in American Sport:

Settlement Houses to the Olympics

The screening of the half hour film Jewish Women in American Sport: Settlement Houses to the Olympics, will be followed by a Q & A session with:

Producer/Director
Shuli Eshel

Executive Producer/Historian
Dr. Linda J. Borish.

Jewish Women in American Sport: Settlement Houses to the Olympics tells the story of the vital role Jewish women have played as athletes, administrators and activists from the settlement houses in the 1880s into the 21st Century, confronting ethnic and gender constraints, and changing American society.

Producer-Director Shuli Eschel and Executive Producer-Historian Dr. Linda J. Borish of Western Michigan University joined with Maccabi USA/Sports for Israel in creating this important historical documentary that provides new insights in American history, Jewish history, Sport history, and Women's and Gender history.
