Exciting Opportunities for Research and Service Await You at the School of Public Health!

An extensive and diverse range of research and community service projects provide students with opportunities to work alongside faculty members engaged in pioneering research at the local, national, and international levels. These initiatives contribute resources and assistance to communities from the School of Public Health’s immediate neighborhoods, to locations around the world. Mexico, Thailand, Indonesia, Kenya, Malawi, and Ukraine are just a few of the countries where SPH scholars are actively working to improve global public health. Research and service projects also inform and enrich the education offered to students in public health, affording opportunities for learning, discovery, and original work. Centers, institutes, and programs in which these activities take place are listed here. Students are encouraged to contact project and center directors directly if additional information is sought.
